MOUNT EVEREST FOUNDATION

The Mount Everest Foundation was created, as a Registered Charity, in 1953 from the proceeds of the first successful ascent of Everest with the aim of helping ventures in the mountainous regions of the world. During the last 40 years it has given grants totalling £500,000 to some 900 expeditions, many of which have climbed major new routes. The MEF follows a strong environmental policy and is dedicated to protecting alpine landscapes, their peoples, fauna and flora. It also supports the Mountain Medicine Centre in London, the international databank which disseminates information on the problems of altitude, their prevention and treatment. Funds are desperately needed to continue the valuable work.

For every copy of this Bibliography sold during 1993, a donation will be made to the MEF’s 40th Anniversary Appeal. Individual donations can be made directly to the Appeal Office: 211 Lillie Road, London SW6 7LW.

PREFACE

The impetus and much of the information for this Bibliography came from the authors' own enthusiastic book-collecting. John Boyle's library, in particular, must surely now contain the most comprehensive assemblage of Everest material anywhere in the world. That said, all new bibliographies depend heavily on earlier compilations, as they do on the infinite goodwill of friends and fellow bibliophiles.

Though we haven't been able to wait for his forthcoming third edition, Yoshimi Yakushi's Catalogue of the Himalayan Literature has been an invaluable source, as has the Alpine Club Library Catalogue, and the book collection of the late Anders Bolinder. Jack Baines and Xavier Eguskitza have set us on the trail of many elusive titles. Eugene Gippenreiter, Barbara Grigor-Taylor, Elizabeth Hawley, Margaret Body at Hodder & Stoughton, Josef Nyka, Ken Wilson and Leonid Zamiatnin have all been generous with their assistance. But most especially, I want to record our indebtedness to Jill Neate and her bibliography Mountaineering Literature (Cicerone Press, 1986). Jill was a close friend of very many years, and she died just before this volume went to press. I find that coupled with a personal sense of loss is the regret that we cannot now look forward to her tooth-comb scrutiny of these pages - and a list of their inevitable shortcomings.

No bibliography can ever be complete, or beyond refinement. Hardly a day passes without disclosing some titbit of data that should have been included. Of course we have missed items; others we know only by allusion, having to take their particulars on trust. We are aware, for instance, that there are many more expedition brochures and reports than we have uncovered; many more reprints and foreign-language editions. Accordingly, it is our hope that readers will join in the quest for 'Everestiana'. Please drop us a line with suggested corrections or new items.

Reference Numbering

Authors are listed alphabetically, followed by a chronological list of their work. This deviation from a straight alpha-numerical system better serves the historical nature of the material.

However, the editions of one particular language are grouped together, even if later ones predate those of other languages. Thus, for John Hunt's Ascent of Everest, all English editions are listed chronologically before foreign-language versions receive similar treatment.

Items with suffix 00 are late additions to the Bibliography, outside the normal numbering system.

Everest History

A chronological list of expeditions to Everest, with their principal sources of reference.

Works of general history will be found in The Bibliography, but for the most part have not been cross-referenced in this section. It should be noted, however, that Walt Unsworth’s Everest (U10) and Peter Gillman’s Everest, the Best Writing and Pictures... (G08) are important sources for all activity on Everest.
