11. ABDUL MATIN KHAN. The eldest son of the late Umer Khan of Jandial. Was a political refugee in Kabul with the rest of his father's family until beginning of 1916. When he returned with the object of regaining his father's patrimony in Jandial, he was unsuccessful in his efforts to get the Jandul and Mamund tribes to help him, and turned to the Nawab of Dir; the latter also was unable to do anything and Abdul Matin Khan became a pensioner, dependent upon the Nawab. In August 1917 he succeeded by a COUPE-DE-MAIN in occupying the fort of Tor in Jandul on behalf of the Nawab, which largely contributed to the conquest of Jandul by the Nawab. Early in 1918, however, he made a serious attempt to seize Barwa from the Nawab but was defeated and taken prisoner. He was released but thence forward he became a formidable enemy to the Nawab and never relaxed his efforts to make himself master of the whole of Jandul. In 1919 he returned to Kabul and from there announced his intention of advancing on Bajaur. In August of that year he effected an entry into Barwa and for a time dominated Upper Jandul. In September, however, the Nawab's Lashkars attacked Barwa and, after desperate fighting, stormed the stronghold and captured Abdul Matin Khan, who, from that time onwards, remained in Dir as a Political prisoner, but was soon after released and turned out of the Nawab's territory. On the death of the late Nawab Badshah Khan, he was deputed by Khan Bahadur Shah Jehan Khan to raise a contingent of Bajauris and threatened Alamzeb Khan who aspired to the Nawabi. This, Abdul Matin Khan did with such success that he lost sight of Shah Jehan Khan's interests and attacked Kambat Fort in the hopes of regaining his patrimony. He was, however, severely defeated and his contingent dispersed. He now lives quietly in a village near Chutiatan, which has been given to him by the Nawab. Was arrested by the Nawab in September 1935 on suspicion of being implicated in the attack on Jandul by Alamzeb Khan and is still detained.

Utman Khels and in Swat Ranizai and Sam-Ranizai. He owns property in B. T. and has disputes with the Tangi Khans while not openly espousing the cause of Government is careful to avoid offending it. Behaved well in 1930 and refused to allow his village to be used by the hostile Lashkar. In February 1936 his house was raided by a gang of dacoits who carried off much property and wounded a daughter of the Faqir (See also No. 28 Who's Who in the Peshawar District).

15. ABDUL WADUD, K.B.E., MIANGUL GULSHAHZADA. Wali of Swat—The grandson and eldest surviving representative of the family of the Akhund of Swat. The Akhund died in 1877 leaving two sons Abdul Hanan and Abdul Khaliq. These died in 1888 and 1892 respectively, each leaving two sons Gulshahzada was the son of the latter. He murdered his two cousins and then started to quarrel with his younger brother Shirin. The election of Sayad Abdul Jabbar Shah as King of Swat in 1915 brought about a reconciliation between them. Sayad Abdul Jabbar Shah was however, too strong for them; he succeeded in establishing an ascendancy over them, and subsequently drove them out of Upper Swat altogether. The two brothers thereupon joined the Nawab of Dir, and were with him in his attempts to reconquer Swat in 1916. In 1917 an undertaking was effected between them and Sayad Abdul Jabbar Shah, and the Miangul left the Nawab and entered into alliance with the rest of Swat. Miangul Gulshahzada was unable to remain long in agreement with Sayad Abdul Jabbar Shah, and soon started an intrigue to get rid of him. In this he was successful and in September 1917 the Swat clans dismissed Sayad Abdul Jabbar Shah and gave their allegiance to Miangul Gulshahzada. In 1918 Miangul Sherin Badshah was killed while fighting against the Nawab of Dir. In 1919 Miangul Gulshahzada defeated the Nawab of Dir and occupied Adinza. In 1922 he was induced by political pressure to restore Adinza to the Nawab and a boundary was fixed by Government-between the States of Dir and Swat. The Miangul then occupied Buner, and established rule over part of Swat Kohistan and the country lying between the Swat valley and Indus. In May 1926 he was formally recognised by the Government of India as Ruler or Wali of Swat at a Durbar at Saida held by the Chief Commissioner. A formal agreement was drawn up, by which he undertook to be friendly to Government and to observe certain boundaries in return for an annual allowance of Rs. 10,000. He possesses Serai Land in Swat Ranizai, Sam Ranizai, Mardan Tahsil and Adinai. He was made a K.B.E., on 1st January 1930. In May 1933 his son Jshanzeb was recognized by Government as his Heir-Apparent. He has always shown himself most loyal to Government and hospitable to Government officers. He rendered inestimable service in 1930 by preventing the Red Shirt movement from spreading to those factions of his State which adjoin the Mardan Sub-Division. Was operated upon for cataract in 1936 and has recovered the sight of the affected eye. In 1934, he delegated full powers of administration to the Wali-Ahad, his heir-apparent. Evidently his intention was to make his son's position as secure as possible before his actual succession and to give him the greatest possible experience. Later on however, he became dissatisfied with the manner in which the Wali Ahad had used the powers conferred upon him and being persuaded that these powers were being used against his Chief Minister and Sipah Salar (Commander-in-Chief) he decided to take over complete control once again. Rather drastic action was taken to assert his authority. Efforts were made to reconcile the two in order to maintain unity in the State and were partially successful.

The Haji of Turangzai is the main supporter of Ahmad Jan Khan and on account of his influence the latter used to be afraid to show any friendly disposition towards Government. Since 1932 however he has appeared more anxious to obtain Government support and he now frequently sends his agents to and corresponds with the Political Agent, Malakand. Was given the fort of Munda by the late Nawab in September 1917, together with several other tracts, including Sherigal on the Panjkora and the whole of Jandul. After the death of his father in 1925 he was supported for the succession by a strong faction in the State and a struggle with his elder brother Shahjahan Khan was expected. The latter however, thanks to his presence in Dir and the assistance of Government, was promptly recognised as Nawab. An agreement was then concluded between the two brothers whereby the property assigned to Alamzeb Khan by his father was assured to him. The brothers however continued to intrigue against each other, and matters came to a head in 1929 when Alamzeb Khan was expelled from Jandul and fled to Bajaur where he took refuge with the Khan of Khar. In 1930 he went on the pilgrimage to Mecca and on his way back he was detained for fear that his presence in Bajaur might lead to trouble. He escaped from detention in October 1930 and returned to Bajaur. On the Nawab of Dir's entering into an alliance with the Khan of Khar in May 1931, he was expelled by the latter and went to Dabgai in Shamozai country. During 1932 he was a close associate of the Faqir of Ailingar in the attacks on Jandul though he refrained from active participation in the hostilities against Government troops at Bandagai. Early in 1933 he applied to be received back into Government favour and came in to interview the Political Agent, Malakand, on safe conduct. Relations were renewed with him but he was told that Government was not prepared to interfere between him and his brother unless he would agree to accept an allowance from him and settle in B. T. He employed certain Mashwani exiles and Balarzai and launched an attack on Jandul in September 1935. Shahzullah Khan of Shahzadai surrendered the Miskini Fort to Alamzeb, which he occupied but was ousted by the Nawab's forces after a battle. He was Subedar-Major of the Dir Levies, but in March 1915 he left the appointment and went to Jandul to the Khan of Barwa, where for a time he did his best to create a combination strong enough to overcome the Nawab and turn him out, hoping the succession would fall to him. Events, however, did not turn out as he wished. He went from Jandul to Swat in the beginning of 1917 to try his fortune there, but with no better result. Bajaur, although his power only extends over a few villages. His ambition is to capture Nawagai but the tribal party has hitherto proved too strong for him. He has always maintained friendly relations with Government and has had from time to time to resist the attacks of the Haji of Turangzai and other religious leaders in consequence. Has been friendly from time to time with the Nawab of Dir, the Wall of Swat, Alamzeh Khan, etc., as it suited his convenience. He is notorious for double-dealing but is the only member of the Ibrahim Khel family who possesses any ability and is capable of ruling Bajaur. Since 1931 he has been in alliance with the Nawab of Dir, and in September of that year with the Nawab's assistance he made an attack on the Khan of Pashat and captured two of his forts. During the troubles of 1932 he rendered no active assistance to Government or the Nawab but this was probably due to the precariousness of his isolated position. He attacked a Nawagai fort on the night 14/15th October 1933, was repulsed with heavy loss of life, and he himself was seriously wounded. 182. SAYYID AHMAD KHAN. Of Barwa, Mast Khel. The late Umra Khan was his cousin, but he did not share in the schemes of conquest indulged in by his relatives and had to fly for his life, his sympathies being with the Khan of Dir, who had married his sister. He was restored to Barwa by the British in 1895, and remained in possession till 1917. Was loyal throughout the 1897 disturbances, but not actively so. He supported the late Nawab's policy of aggrandizement in Jandul and assisted him in turning out the Jara Khan family. He was disappointed in not getting Mundah as a reward for his adherence, the Nawab preferring to bestow the estate on his younger son Miangul Jan. Saiyid Ahmad Khan remained outwardly loyal to the Dir connection during the Nawab Mohammad Sharif Khan's time, but immediately on the latter's death (December 1905) he threw off the mask and formed a strong combination against Aurangzeb, the Nawab's elder son, who had succeeded to the Khananship; and in alliance with Nawagai and Khair seized Gambir and overran Jandul and Maidan. Later on, in 1906, he supported Miangul Jan, and, but for Government intervention, would have driven Aurangzeb Khan from Dir. He made several more attacks on Dir, and once in 1911 was treacherously arrested by the Nawab but subsequently released. In 1913 he and Miangul Jan succeeded in driving the Nawab from Dir but their triumph was short lived. In June 1917 his Lashkars, who were building a fort at Garrara near Kotkai Pir Khel were attacked by the Nawab's forces and decisively defeated, losing their fort, about 300 rifles and many horses. Subsequently in August he found himself unable to resist the Lashkars of the Nawab, and surrendered Jandul with all its forts to him, and himself came to Dir and threw himself on Nawab's mercy. Is now residing at Shahi and has lost all the influence he had in the country.

Accompanied Sir Aurel Stein during his travels in Swat and was employed by Messrs. Speeding Dinda Singh and company in connection with their timber contract in that country. Has a considerable knowledge of the Swat and Indus Kohistan but little or no influence. He is again employed on timber contract work in Swat State.
191. SHAH JEHAN KHAN. Nawab of Dir. Born about 1887. The eldest son of Badshah Khan, late Nawab of Dir. He was made a Khan Bahadur in 1918 and recognized as the heir-apparent of Dir. At his father's death in 1925 there were two factions. One of which attempted to secure the succession for the younger brother, Alamzeh Khan. Government support however proved decisive and Shah Jahan Khan succeeded without bloodshed and was recognized as Nawab by Government in May 1925. He has an indifferent reputation for sincerity among his partisans, but is extremely loyal to Government and is working hard to re-establish the efficiency of a rule which has suffered much during his father's later years. In June 1928 on grounds of disloyalty, he ejected Mohammad Alamzeh Khan from Jandul which had been given to him for his maintenance. He has since continued to consolidate his position, though his control over his own tribe, the Pandra Khel, is imperfect. In 1932, succeeded in beating off the combined attacks of the Faqir of Ailingar and Mohammad Alamzeh Khan on Jandul and subsequently in the same year conducted the Chitral Relief Columns through his country in safety despite the threatening tribal situation. Still cherishes hopes of recovering the lost Dir territory in the Swat Valley and also has ideas of expansion towards Bajaur. Was made a K. B. E. in 1933. In September 1935, Alamzeh Khan collected a Lashkar of the Salarzai and Mashwani exiles and made intrigues with the leading men of the Dir State. Miskini fort was surrendered by Shahwullah Khan, of Shahzadai to Alamzeh Khan, but the Nawab of Dir's forces restored the situation and decisively defeated the opposition. The house of the Nawab of Dir was accidentally burnt down on the night of 27/28th October 1935, and the Nawab lost practically all his personal property. He attended the Viceregal Durbar in Delhi, in the beginning of March 1934, for the investiture. During 1934 he conducted the Chitral Relief Column through Dir State safely. He discharged his obligations very creditably by organising vigorous action and beating off the Faqir of Ailingar's Lashkar which attempted to cross the Panjkora river to attack the Chitral Relief Column on its downward march between Sado and Bandagi. In May, 1935, he helped in bringing the Shamozai Jirga to negotiate with the Political Agent at Chakdara in connection with the Agra settlement.

PART II—CHITRAL.

PREFACE.

The social fabric of Chitral is made up of the Adamzada clans, the Arbabsadas and the Fakir Miskin.

The Fakir Miskin do all the hard labour and fill the ranks of the Sapper and Miner Companies.

Since the advent of the British, the Adamzada has gone down in the world. No longer is he exempt from the payment of taxes, nor does he possess the influence enjoyed by his predecessors. The increase in their numbers, now that the natural check of internecine strife is removed with no corresponding increase in the amount of agricultural land available, has added to his discomfort. Now-a-days the average Adamzada is a poor man.

The Adamzada clans represent the fighting class of the nation. They supply the Chitral Scouts with their recruits, but the Bodyguard is recruited from both the Adamzada clans and the Arbabsadas.

The Arbabsadas form a very small class, really successful Fakir Miskin who have earned position in the service of the Mehtars.

An Adamzada will marry an Arbabsada girl and an Arbabsada will take unto himself a Fakir Miskin woman, but they will be doubtful about giving their daughters to a lower class.

Nasarits and Gujartr.—The southern end of the valley from Drosh downwards is inhabited by Nasarits and Gujartr, the former speaking a dialect of Pushtu which is unknown to most Chitralis. They have no persons of note among them.

Kafirs.—The original Kafirs of Chitral are of the Kalash tribe and are of the lowest status. There are now some colonies of Red Kafirs in the country who fled from Kafiristan to escape conversion. The Red Kafirs are locally known as Bashgalis. The Red Kafirs and Kalash talk their own languages. All the Bashgalis except one or two have now been converted to Islam.

Language.—The language of the Chitralis is Khowar, made up of words from various tongues from Sanskrit to Turki. The aristocracy speak Persian and some individuals know Pushtu and Urdu. The written language is doggerel Persian.

Ruling family.—The ruling family is of the Kator clan of Adamzadas. Legitimacy is considered a matter of prime importance in the succession to the Mehtarship, but is otherwise a disadvantage, as legitimacy conferred some immunity in the periodic epidemics of assassination which formerly occurred when a succession took place. The present Mehtar has ruled that legitimate sons in his family should be given names terminating in Mulk to distinguish them from illegitimate sons. Except for the Mehtar and his sons, the only legitimate members of the ruling family are the sons of Tahammal Shah.

The ties of the foster kinship are considered stronger than those of blood relationship and there is great competition for the fostering of the Mehtar’s children.

The appended genealogy of the Chitral ruling family is interesting, and affords a very fair epitome of its history.

PART II—CHITRAL.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

1. Shahzada.—Only the sons legitimate and illegitimate, of the ruling Mehtar enjoy the title of Shahzada.
2. Mehtarzhan.—Formerly the title given only to sons legitimate and illegitimate of a past Mehtar, but now used rather loosely by the common people when referring to anyone related to the past Mehtars.

3. Clans or Tribes.—These are noted in brackets after the name of the person referred to; and unless otherwise mentioned will be one of the Adamzada Clans.

Selected Elders are called up in turn, about 6 at a time, to hear the petitions and law suits of the people, and submit their opinion to His Highness who is the final authority on everything.

5. Atalig.—Name of appointment, giving control of a large valley or large sub-district.

6. Hakim.—Name of appointment, giving control of a large valley or large sub-district.

7. Charvelu.—Name of appointment giving control of a large village or small district of hamlets in lesser populated areas. Some Charvelus rank as equivalent to Hakim.

8. Baramosh.—Name of appointment giving control of labour for State works.

2. Abdul Hamid (Dashman). Son of Zarim Shah of Chitral. Appointed Charveta of Arando in 1933 in place of Subedar Jamilullah, but has since been dismissed. Has had an eventful career. Was dismissed from the Jungle Officer appointment for suspected defalcations. In 1926 retrieved his position by pursuing the late Highness cause in the attempt to recover Asmar Province. Is a poor figure of a man with no force of character.

3. Abdul Murad Khan (Biza) of Chuinj. Is Hakim of Yarkhun in Mastuj. A well-intentioned and fairly intelligent man. In the 1925 Manlai agitation turned Sunni but has reverted to Maulaism and is popular in Yarkhun.

5. Abdul Samad. Son of Asfandiar Khan (No. 19) (Kator) of Damin. Lieutenant in the Bodyguard.

6. Abdul Qadir Khan. He is half brother of Ghulam Khan of Asmar No. 35 and a cousin to late Highness the Mehtar. From 1922 to 1925 he was Levy Subedar in the Chitral Levies. After this he was summoned to Kabul. The late Highness refused him permission to go, so he went without it. In Kabul he hoped to be given the Khanate of Asmar. He was however disappointed in this. He was offered land elsewhere, this he refused to take and went to Dir, from there he returned to Chitral where he was entirely dependent on late Highness for his livelihood. The latter had settled him in Drosh. He is of no consequence in Chitral.

3. ABDUL MU'AMN SHAH. Maulai Pir and the son of the late Shahzada Lais. His sister is married to Shahzada Muzaffar-ul-Mulk. Formerly he had his residence in Arkari, but in 1923 he left Chitral and has now settled in Zebak. On his departure, his property in Chitral was confiscated. Has numerous Murids in Badakhshan, Shighnan, Roshan, Wakhan, Hunza and a few in Chitral. A wordly and effeminate man and fond of alcohol. Speaks Persian. Regarded the late Mehtar's power unfavourably and would do his best to discredit him with Government, if allowed.

13. AMIN-UL-MULK (Kator). Son of the late Mehtarjao Shah-i-Mulk, the favourite son of Mehtar Aman-i-Mulk. Shah-i-Mulk was murdered by his brother, Mehtar Afzal-ul-Mulk, in 1932. Amin-ul-Mulk's mother was a sister of the late Nawab of Dir. He had inflated notions of his own importance and joined the late Mehtarjae Abdur Rahman Khan in claims to legitimacy and in consequence was turned out of the country in 1909. He resided in Dir for some time but was later pardoned and allowed to return. He now lives in Dusah and is a Captain in the Bodyguard. The present Nawab of Dir has married his sister.

Amir Abi Hayat returned to Chitral in 1924 on the death of his father and has lived here ever since. He read up to Middle Class in the Islamia College, Peshawar, but then refused to continue further. A most unpleasant and lazy individual with an overweening sense of his own importance. Is at present keeping quiet after being severely reprimanded by late Highness and the Assistant Political Agent, but will very likely cause trouble in the future.

A most influential man and trustworthy, has acted as Regent on two occasions during the absence of the late Mehter in India. He is the leading man in Chitral next to the Mehter and is trusted favourite of his. One of the pleasantest and most able men in Chitral. Very loyal to Government. An outstanding character.

28. DUSH (Mohammed Bega) of Kosht where he is Hakim. He is foster-father of Shahzada Khadev-ul-Mulk and a member of the Mehter's Council. During the 1925 agitation had a bad name for oppressing Maulais.
