BY JAMES RENNELL,

Late Major of Engineers and Surveyor General to the Honourable the East India Company.

Printed by order of the Honourable the COURT of DIRECTORS of the said Company. 1778.

The following is a list of the names of the persons who have been named in the text of the book. The names are arranged in alphabetical order of the surnames. The names are given in full, including the first name and the middle name, where applicable. The names are given in the order in which they appear in the text of the book. THE honourable the COURT OF DIRECTORS having thought proper to print the BOOK OF ROADS IN BENGAL AND BAHAR for the use of the Company's Servants in those provinces, I have added to it as much as I thought was wanting to render it a complete travelling guide, as far as relates to distances, and the nature of the rivers that intersect the roads. The utility of such a work in any country must strike every one: much more in a country where the people employed by Government are mere sojourners, and from the want of local knowledge must depend upon the information of Guides, who often mislead them either through ignorance or interested motives. At best, those guides know only the most frequented roads; so that in crossing the country no information whatever can be derived from them: and as for the peasantry, or ryots, they cannot be supposed to know the roads beyond the circle of the markets which they frequent.

As the mode of arrangement here differs from that of all other Books of Roads that I have seen, I may be expected to set forth my reason for adopting it, which is, that I consider CALCUTTA, MOORSBEDABAD, PATNA, and DACCA, as the places where these Tables will be in the most general use (the first being the seat of government, and the others either the capital military stations, or factories, or both) and therefore I have framed a separate Table or set of Tables for each, for the ease and convenience of the people residing there: so that, in fact, these four cities may be considered as centres from whence all the great roads issue. The articles in each set are alphabetically arranged, to prevent the necessity of having a number of Indexes.

The Table for CALCUTTA does not refer to any of the others; and may therefore form a separate book, as well as a part of the general work. The other three Tables for MOORSHEDEBAD, PATNA, and DACCA, are, by a mutual reference to each other, and to the CALCUTTA Table, equally complete with the first, but cannot be separated. A Fifth Table contains the principal CROSS ROADS; with an INDEX pointing out the roads from about twenty-eight stations in different parts of the provinces to every place of note within their respective neighbourhoods. These stations are either the seats of provincial councils, or of collectors; subordinate military stations, or factories; or places, which from their situation are likely to become military posts in time of invasion. It is expected that this latter part of the work will be highly useful to Officers who command detachments on actual service, as my own experience has repeatedly convinced me how much it is wanted.

A small Map, which is to be bound up with it, will render the book still more complete, by combining the idea of the respective positions of places with that of the distances.

As there is scarce a place of note within the provinces omitted in the four Tables, a traveller cannot be at a loss to find his route to either of the four cities: for if he should be off the great road, he cannot be many miles from some one place mentioned in the Tables. And the Index to the Cross Roads being equally copious, the roads to the provincial towns will be found as easily.

So great a number of references as occur in the book may by some be thought troublesome, or perhaps unnecessary, but every discerning person will be convinced that an equal number of repetitions would have swelled the book beyond the size of a pocket volume, and totally destroyed the intention of printing it.

1. Observe in the Tables, that when a reference is made to a place, without mentioning the page, it means a place in the same table from whence the reference is made; On the contrary, when the page is mentioned, it refers to some other Table. For an instance of the first kind--Look at Amboob in the table for CALCUTTA, which stands as follows: [Amboob. See Patna, 1st road, 49. 0.] Here it means that you are to look for the particulars of the road to Amboob under the article PATNA in the same Table; and that the whole distance is 49 miles. For an instance of the second kind---Look at Bettyab in the Table for MOORSHEDABAD. You are first referred to PATNA (page 53) where the portion of road between MOORSHEDABAD and PATNA is included in the road from CALCUTTA to PATNA. And next to Bettyab (page 10) for the road from PATNA to Bettyab; the road from MOORSHEDABAD to Bettyab leading through PATNA.

2. The references in the Index to the CROSS ROADS are rather more troublesome, by reason that the order of the lines must sometimes be reversed: as for instance, in the road from Dinagepour to MAULDAH (page 156). Here, in reversing the distances, care must be taken not to misplace them: for one might be apt to read 6. 2 instead of 6. 6 for the distance between Dinagepour and Futtypour.

Although no more than about 28 stations will be found in the Index, yet by attending to the alphabetical lists under each station, many more routes may be found. For instance, although Deegur is not chosen as a station, yet as the roads from most of the western stations to that place are inserted, it is evident that by reversing them, the same purpose is answered as if Deegur had been made a station. The same of many other places. A very little practice will make the use of the Index familiar; and its advantages, I have no doubt, will overbalance the trouble of turning over the book.

With respect to the Rivers---It is well known to Gentlemen who have resided in BENGAL, that few rivers or nullahs that exist in the dry season, can be fordable during the rainy season, or for some months afterwards: the fords therefore must be understood to continue only from December to June.

The Distances, which are in Statute Miles and Furlongs, are reckoned from the following Standards :

In Calcutta	- -	from Old Fort William.
Moorshedabad		from the Palace of Mootyjl.
Patna	- -	from the Kellab.
Dacca	- -	from the English Factory.
Burdwan	- -	from the English Factory.
Dinagepour	-	from Rajegunge Bazar.
Islamabad	- -	from the Old Fort.

And from the centres of all the other stations.

The Cofs of HINDOSTAN is about two Statute Miles and a sixteenth; as appears by the measurement of the Road from MOORSHEDEBAD to PATNA taken by order of the Emperor. But the computed Cofs of BENGAL and BAHAR is commonly less than two miles, and varies more than a fourth part in different quarters of the Provinces. By comparing the distances in the Tables with the horizontal distances in the Map, it will be found that one mile in seven is taken up by the windings of the Roads; which, considering the flatness and openness of the country, is a circumstance that one would not expect.

As most parts of BENGAL and BAHAR are level, or nearly so, the Sun's rising and setting may, in clear weather, be as easily discerned as at sea; I have therefore added a Table of the time of the Sun's rising and setting, as it furnishes the easiest method of regulating time for common purposes.

It is a pleasure to the Editor to have the opportunity of publishing the results of the work done by the various departments of the Government of India during the year 1907. The work has been done in a most efficient manner and the results are of a high order of excellence. ## SUN'S RISING AND SETTING.

** The Use of the within Table is too obvious to require an explanation. The Latitude of the Place must be found in the Map opposite to the Title Page. Observe, that by Reason of the Refraction, the Sun appears to be much higher than it really is ; so that if the rising and setting be reckoned from the Time when the Body of Sun is quite above the Horizon, it will be nearest the Truth.
