Foreword

Apart from its central archival resources for the internal history of British India, the India Office Library and Records (IOLR) maintains a huge body of source materials for the history and culture of areas outside the Sub-continent or on its fringes. In this, the latest of IOLR regional guides, Amar Kaur Jasbir Singh has identified and listed those materials that relate to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan. Researchers familiar with the complex and scattered nature of the IOLR's holdings for these areas will readily appreciate the value of her work.

Readers of this guide will also wish to know that the author has compiled a companion volume entitled Himalayan Triangle. A historical survey of British India's relations with Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan 1765–1950. In this latter work she has closely examined the principal primary sources for British India's relations with the Himalayan region and emerged with an account that is both clear and coherent in its overall treatment as well as challenging in some of its more specific conclusions. It is hoped that this new historical study will stimulate fresh investigation of the unique materials described in the present guide.

MARTIN MOIR Deputy Director India Office Records

Preface

The present volume, with its attendant lists, aims to introduce and survey the very wide range of source materials held in the India Office Library and Records (IOLR) for the history of Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan. The main emphasis of the guide is upon the archives held in the India Office Records (IOR), both official and private, which uniquely document the development of British India's political relations with the Himalayan region. A further section includes the India Office's relevant maps and official publications. The survey also covers the India Office Library's (IOL) collections of prints and drawings, printed books and (more briefly) Tibetan language materials.

Inevitably with a complex and heterogeneous collection such as the India Office Library and Records, the source materials for particular subjects or areas are not easy to locate amidst a plethora of catalogues and other finding aids. The aim of this guide therefore is to open up to researchers these very extensive and scattered materials relating to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan, and to remove some of the obstacles which present themselves on a search of the archival holdings of the India Office Records.

Many colleagues at the India Office gave help and assistance with the compilations used in this guide. I would like to repeat here the thanks I have already given them in private. Amongst those who allowed me to draw on their specialist knowledge were Ian Baxter, David Blake, Andrew Cook, Geoffrey Armitage, David Plumb and Clare Miles. Most specially, do I wish to thank Martin Moir who gave generously of his time and knowledge, smoothing out many rough edges and helping to solve complicated problems in regard to the archival presentation.

AMAR KAUR JASBIR SINGH

The India Office Library and Records

The Records

The official archives held in the India Office Records (IOR) mainly derive from, and reflect, the activities and responsibilities of the India Office (1858–1947), the Burma Office (1937–48), the East India Company (1600– 1858) and the Board of Control (1784–1858), and a number of British agencies overseas which were linked with one or other of the four main London offices. Amongst these materials the bulk (over 175,000 volumes, files and boxes) consists of original documentary archives usually, though not invariably, arranged in regular series, eg original letters received, drafts or copies of letters sent, registered files of correspondence, minutes of proceedings of committees and other corporate bodies, lists of personnel and nominal returns, title deeds and other legal documents, books of account, reports, memoranda, ships logs, etc. Some private archives are also retained with certain official series (eg H: Home Miscellaneous), although in general such materials are administered separately in the European Manuscripts (or Private Papers) Section of the India Office Records. Besides these documentary archives there are also extensive reference collections of maps (about 40,000) and official publications (about 70,000) largely built up by the India Office and its predecessors.

In view of their magnitude and complexity, the India Office Records defy efforts to encompass their scope in any conveniently succinct formula. Although the majority of records relate directly or indirectly to British trade and administration in South Asia, ie the territories now occupied by India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Burma, the full geographical scope of the India Office Records is far wider, reflecting both the East India Company's almost global trading activities as well as the foreign, defence and political policies of the Imperial Government of India. As a result of these different concerns, the India Office possesses substantial historical source materials for numerous other areas for varying periods. Areas of particular interest to this study are Tibet, Sikkim, Bhutan, Nepal, Russian Central Asia and Afghanistan (from the late eighteenth century to 1947), China (from the early seventeenth century to 1947) and peripherally Japan (twentieth century).

Most India Office Record series come to an end with the Independence of India, Pakistan and Burma in 1947–48, although certain series continue for a few years later. Broadly speaking, it is then necessary to go to the records of the Commonwealth Relations Office and the Foreign Office in order to study British policies towards India, Pakistan and Burma, as well as those for Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan, Nepal and China in the years following Independence. To the extent that most of the India Office Records series end around 1947–48, the records may be regarded as a largely, though not entirely, closed official archive. Thus acquisitions are limited in scale and mostly designed to supplement the existing collections.

With the dissolution of the India Office and the Burma Office in 1947–48, the administration of the India Office Records passed to the Commonwealth Relations Office, together with the India Office Library, with which the Records were naturally and increasingly linked. The Records and the Library continued to be administered successively by the Commonwealth Relations Office, the Commonwealth Office, and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office until 1982 when their management was transferred to the British Library. See also below under The Library.

The Library

The India Office Library was founded as the Library of the East India Company in 1801. It was established as a repository for the safe custody of oriental books and manuscripts placed in its care by its servants in India and by others. The Company Directors soon adopted a systematic policy of strengthening both the Library and a museum illustrating Indian art, antiquities, social life, and natural history, which grew up side by side with the Library. In 1858, on the transfer of the Company's powers and material possessions to the Crown, the Library came under the administration of the newly-created Department of State, the India Office.

The Library has fulfilled two distinct purposes. It has served as a library of official reference, at first for the East India Company's Court of Directors, after 1858 for the Secretary of State for India in Council, and from September 1947 for the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations; at the same time it has functioned as a learned library for the use of orientalists. The accumulations have been from the outset made available to scholars and are constantly augmented by a considered policy of expansion, as well as by the generosity of private benefactors. After the transfer to the Crown in 1858, successive Secretaries of State for India continued the Company's enlightened direction of the Library. Partly by design, partly by historical accident, the India Office Library continues to serve the needs of Asian specialists, and sometimes is a useful source of reference to other government departments. In 1982, the management of the India Office Library and Records was transferred from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to the British Library, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs still retaining ultimate responsibility for all the collections acquired up to 1947.

The resources of the Library fall into five main categories: printed books, manuscripts, prints and drawings, photographs, serials and newspapers. There are more than 121,000 books in European languages, 262,806 books in Asian languages and over 39,000 serials in western and oriental languages. The collection of newspapers which exceeds more than 4,000 volumes, mainly in English, includes many rare and, in some instances, unique titles. An overall figure for western, Company and natural history drawings is approximately 24,000, whereas Indian miniatures and Indian popular painting number more than 2,000. The photograph collections contains over 195,000 photographs. The collection of Oriental printed books are divided into separate language collections, of which the main ones are Bengali, Hindi, Sanscrit and the Prakrits, Urdu, Tamil, Telegu, Arabic and Persian. Also to be found are smaller collections in some eighty Indo-Aryan languages. The Oriental manuscripts number nearly 28,000 items, excluding several thousand fragments in classical languages such as Sanscrit, Tibetan, Khotanese and Kuchean. Sanscrit, Tibetan, Persian and Arabic manuscripts form the bulk of the India Office collection, but also included is material in modern Indian languages, ie Assamese, Bengali, Balochi, Pashto, Brahui, Kanarese, Kharia, Kurku, Khasi, Mon, etc. Manuscripts in Burmese, Indonesian, Sinhalese, Thai, Turki and Turkish, and in other Tibeto-Burman languages, ie Abor-Miri, Bhotia, Ahom are also to be found in the India Office Library.

East India Company General Correspondence with India and Board's Collections, 1700–1858 (IOR: E/4, F/4)

These series include some of the most important correspondence concerning the East India Company's connections with the Himalayan region from the late eighteenth century to the end of Company rule in India (1858). Though of different provenance – East India Company and Board of Control – they are archivally very closely connected and are best used in conjunction with each other.

E/4

East India Company General Correspondence with India 1703–1858

1112 volumes

The General Correspondence consists principally of four great series of Letters received from Bengal/India, Madras and Bombay for the period 1709–1858, plus four series of Despatches sent by the Company's Court of Directors to the same governments between 1753 and 1858. The particular series of direct relevance to Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim are as follows:

E/4/20-147 Letters from Bengal, 1709-1834 E/4/148-288 Letters from Bengal and India, 1834-58 E/4/616-739 Despatches to Bengal, 1753-1833 E/4/740-855 Despatches to Bengal and India, 1834-58

The above series cover almost the entire range of the Court of Directors' correspondence with the Governments of Bengal and India in all departments with the exception of letters addressed to, or received by, the Secret Committee in London, which is normally omitted after about 1787 (for Secret Correspondence see Political and Secret Department Records, pp. 24–102). Within this wide-ranging correspondence it will usually be found that the Political Department Letters and Despatches are the most useful for the study of British Indian relations with the Himalayan states, although some relevant material is also scattered through the correspondence of the other departments (eg Public, Revenue, Military etc) included in the main E/4 series.

In general enclosures to Letters fromBengal and India – which often contribute the most information and detailed parts of the Company's correspondence – are not usually bound up with their covering letters in the E/4 series. Such documents may, however, be traced elsewhere in the India Office Records, notably in the Board's Collections (see below) or in the India Proceedings (see pp. 103–7).

The best approach to the voluminous E/4 correspondence series is through the seperate indexes to the Court's Despatches, viz

Z/E/4/1–13 Index to Despatches to Bengal, 1753–1834 Z/E/4/14–32 Index to Despatches to India and Bengal, 1834–58 These indexes, which are fairly modern and also comprehensive, provide references to pages in the actual volumes of Despatches to Bengal and India. Given that material relating to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan is not very extensive during this period (and also very widely scattered throughout these lengthy series), it is necessary to make the fullest use of the references given in the indexes. In particular, once a relevant Despatch has been traced, it is then possible to work back to the appropriate letter(s) from Bengal/India under reply, as well as to refer across the Board's Collections (see below) for enclosures, etc.

F/4 Board's Collections, 1796–1858

About 2734 volumes

The Board's Collections are very closely linked with the E/4 series, described above, in that they are made up of copies of correspondence, minutes and resolutions, etc, cited in, or enclosed with, Letters from Bengal and India (as well as Madras and Bombay). In fact most of the material in the collections consists of extracts from the India Proceedings, (see pp. 105–6), relating to particular subjects. This form of subject arrangement in some ways makes the Collections easier to use than the Proceedings themselves. On the other hand, the Collections have the disadvantage of being arranged not according to the dates and numbers of the letters from Bengal and India (with which they were originally associated as enclosures) but according to the numbers and dates of the Court of Directors' answering draft despatches. Finally, it should be mentioned that although many of the Board's Collections were destroyed by the India Office during the 1860s, fortunately those for the Political Department (dealing with frontier and external relations) were mostly preserved.

In the following list the contents of the relevant Collections have been briefly described down to 1829. For the later Collections researchers should refer to the original registers compiled at the Board of Control, viz

Z/F/4/1-18 Register of Board's Collections, 1794-1858

Since these Registers are not themselves indexed, it is necessary either to look through the contents of each volume for relevant material or to trace relevant Collections in the Registers by means of the Draft Numbers and related details contained in the volumes of E/4 Despatches. For a more detailed explanation of how to trace Board's Collections see IOLR Aids to readers, no 2.

Home Miscellaneous Series, 1600–1900 (IOR: H)

858 volumes

This collection began to be assembled in the late nineteenth century and came to be used by the India Office Record Department as a convenient repository for almost any type of document for which a suitable place could not be found elsewhere amongst the more regular archive series. The principal components are as follows:

(a) Miscellaneous Company records ranging in date from the early seventeenth to the mid-nineteenth century. These include letters and other materials received from India, together with compilations, extracts, accounts and memoranda prepared in East India House, particularly in the Examiner's Office.

(b) A collection known as the 'East Indies Series' consisting largely of correspondence on Indian affairs supplied to the Office of the Secretary of State by the Company (1748–84) and inherited by the Board of Control.

(c) Miscellaneous records of the Board of Control (1770–1830), including materials received from India in original or copy or extract form (eg Enclosures to Bengal Secret Letters, 1800–30); Home Correspondence, notes and memoranda.

(d) Various collections of private papers, the most extensive being those of David Scott (1778–1805), the Marquess of Wellesley (1799–1805), Sir John Malcolm (1808–37), James Cumming (1808–27), and General John Jacob (1840–72). In addition there are collections of archival materials, mostly copies but some originals, formed by various officials, notably Sir John Kay, Sir George Forrest, S C Hill and others.

The bulk of the material relates to the Company period and especially to trade; disputes involving Company servants; revenue, financial and judicial administration in India; and to military and diplomatic operations in the Sub-continent and outside (Tibet, Bhutan, Sikkim, Nepal, Burma, etc).

For a detailed analysis see Samuel Charles Hill Catalogue of the Home Miscellaneous Series (London, 1927). The entries in this list are mostly taken from Hill's catalogue. In the case of out-dated methods of spelling or contemporary renderings of certain proper names (eg Cooch Beyhar, Boutanners) which are contained in Hill's catalogue have been retained here.

Military Department and War Staff Records, 1716–1957 (IOR: L/MIL, L/WS)

44,948 volumes/files and 1935 boxes

The Military Department records originated in the activities of various different offices and committees, viz:

The Military Department at East India House (1809–58) The several Court of Directors Committees concerned with military matters, eg the Military Seminary Committee (1809–34), the Political and Military Committee (1834–58) The Military Department of the Board of Control (1807–58) The India Office Military Department (1858–1947) Addiscombe Military Seminary (1809–61)

The L/MIL records reflect and document the whole spectrum of military affairs ranging from military policy, defence schemes and the organisation of the army, navy and airforce in India and related territories, to the careers – appointments, pay, leave, promotion and pensions – of individual officers and soldiers in the Indian Army, the Indian Medical Service and the Royal Indian Navy and its predecessors (from 1867).

Very closely linked with the Military Department records are the India Office War Staff Papers (L/WS). The War Staff organization was set up in 1939 within the India Office under the Military Secretary. Having taken over a number of pre-war Military Department files, it continued to operate and produce its own records relating to virtually all aspects of military strategy, organization, intelligence and supply, down to 1949 when it was merged with the Commonwealth Relations Office Defence Department.

For a comprehensive guide to all the Military Department and War Staff records see Anthony Farrington, Guide to the records of the India Office Military Department (London, 1982). This present study only therefore briefly singles out some of the main L/MIL and L/WS series which throw light on British India's military involvement with Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim. In particular, researchers who wish to locate biographical material for the careers of individual officers and soldiers who served in the Himalayan region should consult Farrington's Guide. See also I A Baxter, A brief guide to biographical sources (London, 1979).

2, 547 volumes

In addition to the main series of Military Letters received and Despatches sent, Marine Letters received are included from 1867. There are also separate series of Secret Military Letters (1906–35) and Despatches (1904–30) and Secret and Confidential Military Telegrams received (1914–35) and sent (1914–37).

The pre-India Office series originated in the archives of both the Company and the Board of Control (see William Foster, A guide to the India Office Records 1600–1858 (London, 1919), pp. 17–18, 25–26).

For registers and indexes see Z/L/MIL/3. For earlier correspondence on military matters see under E/4; and for later file copies see L/MIL/6-7.

L/MIL/5 Compilations and Miscellaneous Records, 1754–1944

1,071 volumes/files

These include the following series:

- (a) Military Department Minute Papers, 1860-81
- (b) Medal Rolls, 1799–1911
- (c) Prize and Batta Rolls, 1793–1886
- (d) Miscellaneous Memoranda, 1819–74

For some registers and indexes, see Z/L/MIL/5

L/MIL/6 Departmental Papers, 1882–1948

5,221 volumes/files

These comprise the series called Military Correspondence which differs from the series of annual files started by other India Office departments during the 1880s in that it does not always contain complete copies of correspondence with India (see L/MIL/3).

For registers and indexes see Z/L/MIL/6.

L/MIL/7 Departmental Papers: Military Collections, 1850–1950

19,656 files

A particularly vast, valuable and accessible assembly of documents on all aspects of military policy and administration. Collections concerning Sikkim, Bhutan and the North-East Frontier are listed below.

Political & Secret Department Records, 1756–1950 (IOR: L/P&S)

Most of the pre-India Office records contained in this group – minutes, correspondence with India and Home correspondence – originated either in the activities of the Secret Committee (1784–1858), or in the work of the Secret and Political Departments of the Board of Control (1784–1858). In L/P&S/I and 2, the group covers records of various other early committees concerned with Secret or Political affairs. For the period of the India Office proper (1858–1947), the Political and Secret archives are from the following departments:

Political and Secret, 1858–1930 Political (Internal), 1931–41 Political, 1941–44 Political (States), 1944–47 Political (External), 1931–41 External, 1941–47

The L/P&S records are broadly similar in scope to those of the Government of India Foreign Department, and as with the Foreign Department, the subjects covered in L/P&S tend to fall into two distinct main groups: internal and external. The former group mostly covers relations with the princely states within the sub-continent, together with certain general matters connected with honours and ceremonies. The latter group (ie the external) relates primarily to frontier affairs and to foreign policy (ie relations with the Middle East, Iran, Afghanistan, Russian Central Asia, Nepal, Bhutan, Tibet and China etc, as well as with other western powers in South Asia). This distinction formed the basis of the administrative division made in 1931 between the Political (Internal) and the Political (External) departments but it had also in practice existed earlier in the division between the Political and Secret branches of the old Political and Secret Department. According to this arrangement the secret branch dealt with highly sensitive correspondence about war, peace and diplomacy – which usually meant frontier and foreign affairs – whilst the political branch handled the more routine matters that normally characterised relations with the Indian princely states.

It should be noted that British India's relations with the Himalayan states were variously classified as Secret or Political in the course of the nineteenth century; it is therefore necessary for researchers to explore both series (see L/P&S/5 and 6 below) for relevant material. From 1875 onwards the distinction between Secret and Political becomes far less significant from the political point of view of locating relevant correspondence since from that year Secret and Political documents were filed together in the same volumes (see L/P&S/7, L/P&S/8, L/P&S/10, L/P&S/13). After the division of the Political and Secret Department into two separate branches – Political (External) and Political (Internal) – in 1931, the former branch dealt with the affairs of Tibet and Bhutan and the latter with Sikkim.

Within the huge accumulation of Political and Secret Department Records

the following classes are particularly important for Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim and are therefore described in some detail

L/P&S/3 Political & Secret Home Correspondence, 1807–1911

469 volumes and 22 boxes

For the most part Political and Secret Home Correspondence are arranged as separate series until 1875 from which date they are combined. The series includes the Board's and the India Office's correspondence with other Home Government departments, official and non-official organisations and persons. During the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries the Foreign Office often assumed joint responsibility for certain posts with the India Office and its predecessors. Even where posts were not shared there was often a strong Foreign Office interest in relations with the particular area concerned, and this increased during the late nineteenth century. In addition, the much more complicated administrative divisions of responsibility which resulted from the First World War involved a number of other British Government departments, notably the Colonial Office, War Office and Admiralty, as well as Cabinet Committees such as the Committee of Imperial Defence.

For Home Correspondence after 1911 see L/P&S/10-11 file series (pp.31-70).

590 volumes and 10 boxes

Copies of correspondence kept by the Secret Committee, the Board and the India Office are included. Up to 1858 there are two broadly overlapping sets of Secret Letters received from each of the three Indian governments – Bengal/India, Madras and Bombay. One of these sets belonged to the Secret Committee, whilst the other (more complete) series belonged to the Board. Enclosures to Secret Letters are usually bound separately. Copies of Secret Despatches exist in three largely duplicating series, some of which also contain correspondence between the Board and the Secret Committee. Between 1859 and 1874 there is only one series of Secret Despatches.

The following series contain scattered documentation for Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim:

L/P&S/6 Political Correspondence with India, 1792–1874

761 volumes

This class consists largely of separate series of Letters received from and Despatches sent to, each of the three main Indian governments (Bengal/India, Madras and Bombay) in the Political Department. Up to 1858 copies of most of this correspondence will also be found in the East India Company's General Correspondence with India, E/4 (see above pp. 4–5). However, the pre-1858 L/P&S/6 series have two notable advantages from the researcher's point of view, viz:

(a) Most of the volumes are fairly well indexed or have lists of contents

(b) They are entirely made up of Political Department correspondence – a major source for the study of the Himalayan region in the nineteenth century –

whereas the E/4 series comprise letters relating to almost all departments of government.

The location of enclosures to the Political Letters from Bengal/India included in L/P&S/6 presents some problems. Thus down to the end of Company rule, such documents were not normally kept with their covering letters but have to be traced in the Board's Collection, F/4 (see above pp. 5–9). Between 1858 and 1874, however, the enclosures to Political Letters received will be found in the special series included in L/P&S/6 called Collections to Political Despatches to India (ie they are separated from their covering Political Letters and filed according to the dates and numbers of the answering India Office Despatches).

Material concerning Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim may be traced in the following main series:

L/P&S/7 Political & Secret Correspondence with India, 1875–1911

356 volumes and 70 boxes

Consists mostly of long series of Political and Secret Letters received and sent, and shorter sequences of Despatches. Correspondence about the Indian States, 1881–1902, extracted from these volumes, is arranged in boxes at the end of the section. These series constitute a major source for British Indian relations with the Himalayan region for the period covered. For later file copies see L/P&S/10 and L/P&S/11 (pp.31–70 below).

L/P&S/8 Demi-official Correspondence, Secretary's Letters, 1862–1912

16 volumes and 1 box

Demi-official correspondence and Secretary's letters were used primarily to carry information between the India Office and the Government of India rather than to express or declare official policy.

L/P&S/8/1-14

POLITICAL AND SECRET DEMI-OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE, 1872-1912

Most volumes contain indexes

L/P&S/9 Correspondence relating to areas outside India, 1781–1911

196 volumes and 12 boxes

This group, consisting of a number of series, includes letters for various periods from agents, envoys and others. In addition there are copies of Despatches to the Persian Gulf, Aden and Zanzibar, and special collections of correspondence of all types relating to China (1839–52) and Abyssinia (1867–71). Those relating to Tibet are to be found in the China correspondence series.

For some registers see Z/L/P&S/9.

SECRET DEPARTMENT CHINA CORRESPONDENCE, 1832-44

All volumes with index or list of contents

L/P&S/10 Political & Secret Separate (Subject) Files, 1902–31

1315 volumes

This series is made up of individually bound files containing fairly comprehensive collections of documents on particular subjects accumulating over a period of years (eg L/P&S/10/147, the Dalai Lama; L/P&S/10/183, North-East Frontier; L/P&S/10/221, Bhutan and 1910 Treaty). An important file might contain a letter received from the Government of India along with its enclosures, minutes by the head of the appropriate India Office Department, by the supervising Under-Secretary, by the Secretary of State himself, printed memoranda on the subject, a reference to another department, a draft of the proposed despatch and a fair copy of the communication which was finally issued. From 1902–11, the series supplements Political and Secret Home Correspondence and Correspondence with India (L/P&S/3 and L/P&S/7). From 1912 it supplements the Annual Files listed under L/P&S/11.

309 volumes

These files conform to the normal pattern of India Office departmental papers introduced into other departments during the 1880s. Essentially they form the continuation of the Home and India Correspondence series (L/P&S/3 and L/P&S/7) which came to an end in 1911, although particularly full files of papers on special subjects were still bound as separate volumes and now form L/P&S/10.

L/P&S/12 Political (External) Files and Collections, 1931–50

Approximately 4,815 files/volumes

Around 1931 the two series of subject files and annual files (L/P&S/10-11) were replaced by two different series of Political Files and Collections; Internal (L/P&S/13) dealing with internal Indian and Indian States subjects and External (L/P&S/12) dealing with areas outside India. The collections (which follow the files) are arranged geographically and are thus easily accessible. The L/P&S/12 collections covering predominantly the Himalayan kingdoms and the frontier subjects are:

L/P&S/18 Political & Secret Department Memoranda, 1840–1947

About 1230 items bound or in folders.

From around the mid-nineteenth century the Political Department began producing or collecting Memoranda on subjects of interest to departmental and government officials. These memoranda, which are in effect the equivalent of modern departmental briefs, record not only individual officials' opinion on individual topics but also summarise the background papers, thus providing easily accessible précis of all the most important issues before the Department. They were mostly prepared by India Office, Foreign Office and Government of India officials and cover the whole field of the Department's interests ranging from East Africa to China, and including the Princely States. They are roughly grouped in four sections according to subject/area.

Proceedings and Consultations of the Government of India and of the Presidencies and Provinces, 1702–1942 (IOR: P)

This group is made up of bound copies of some of the main records of the central and provincial governments in India supplied for the information of the East India Company and the India Office. Before 1860 the majority of these records are usually known as Consultations and mostly comprise manuscript copies of the correspondence, minutes and resolutions of the governments concerned. From 1860 onwards they are called Proceedings and usually consist of:

(a) Printed copies of the Proceedings classified in India as 'Part A', ie correspondence, resolutions etc, dealing with the more important administrative measures but without connected minuting

(b) Very brief printed summaries of the 'Part B' Proceedings which relate to more minor or routine matters.

After 1921, with the introduction of a new filing system for record-keeping in India and the growth of provincial autonomy, records of the Proceedings-type gradually ceased to be transmitted to London.

Bengal Proceedings etc, 1704–1937

Approximately 14,510 volumes or part-volumes

Between 1633 and 1686 the East India Company maintained at various times several trading posts in Bengal and Orissa, including Hariharpur, Balasore, Hugli, Casimbazar, Patna, Dacca and Malda. Of these, Hugli (established 1651) emerged as the principal centre with its Agent generally in charge of Company trade in the Bengal region. Except for two brief periods (1658–61 and 1682–84) the Hugli Agency remained generally subordinate to Fort St George (see under Madras) during the seventeenth century. Soon after the permanent establishment of the settlement at Satanati (Calcutta) in 1691, and the construction of Fort William there a few years later, the new headquarters in Bengal was fixed at Fort William, and by 1700 the Governor and President at Fort William was made independent of Fort St George.

During the eighteenth century the commercial and strategic importance of Calcutta gradually grew, whilst its political importance was immensely increased after the defeat of the Nawab of Bengal at Plassey (1757), the Company's acquisition of the Twenty-four Parganas and other districts, and, above all, by the grant of the diwani (ie revenue authority) over Bengal, Bihar and Orissa in 1765. This basic change in the position of Calcutta was then reflected in the provisions of the Regulating Act of 1773 (13 Geo III, c. 63), which appointed Warren Hastings, the Governor of Fort William, as the first Governor-General invested with certain supervisory powers over the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay. Thereafter, until 1833, the immediate dominions of the Bengal Government gradually expanded to include Benares (1775), the 'Ceded and Conquered Provinces' of Oudh and Nagpur (1800–03), Kumaon (1816), the Saugor and Nerbudda territories (1817), Ajmer and Merwara (1810–20), and Arakan, Tenasserim and Assam (1826) etc.

The Charter Act of 1833 (3 & 4 Will IV, c. 85) effected a major division in these territories by establishing the Presidency of Agra for the Upper Provinces (see under Agra), leaving the Lower Provinces to the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal. At the same time the Governor-General was appointed Governor-General of India, thus creating the Government of India over and above Bengal Presidency, for which, however, the Governor-General continued to be responsible as Governor, though empowered to appoint a Deputy Governor for that Presidency during his own absence (see under India). By 1843 separate secretariats for India and Bengal had also been set up. In 1854 (following the India Act of 1853) it was decided to complete the process of differentiating Bengal from India by appointing a separate Lieutenant-Governor for Bengal, with the Governor-General no longer acting as its Governor. Bengal continued to be administered in this fashion until 1905 when the province was divided, with the eastern part combined with Assam to form the new Lieutenant-Governorship of eastern Bengal and Assam, and the remainder of Bengal continuing under its own Lieutenant-Governors. On the reunification of Bengal in 1912 and the formation of the separate provinces of Assam and Bihar and Orissa, Bengal was once more raised to Presidency status with its own Governor.

For earlier records, see under G, Factory Records (especially G/2, 6, 7, 15, 16, 20, 23, 25, 27 and 28). For the Proceedings etc of the Governor-General of India in Council from 1834 onwards, see under India. For the period 1905–12, see under Eastern Bengal and Assam. India Proceedings, 1834–1942

Approximately 9049 volumes or part-volumes

The Government of India (ie the Governor-General of India in Council) was established in 1834 according to the terms of the Charter Act of 1833 (3 & 4 Will IV, c. 85). Before this – and since the Regulating Act of 1773 (13 Geo III, c. 63) – the Governor-General of Fort William in Bengal had only exercised certain limited supervisory powers over the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay. The 1833 Charter Act not only increased these powers but in principal separated the Government of India (in which these powers were vested) from the Government of Bengal. Separate departmental Proceedings for India were accordingly started in 1834 although the full division of the India and Bengal secretariats was only effected in 1843. With the transfer of the Company's powers to the Crown in 1858, the Governor-General was also recognized as Viceroy, ie the Queen's representative in India.

Assam Proceedings, 1874-1905, 1912-31

Approximately 461 volumes or part-volumes

The settled areas of Assam were ceded by the Burmese in 1826. Thereafter (until 1874) the Assam territories – gradually augmented by various hill and tribal areas – were administered as part of Bengal. In 1874 Assam became a Chief Commissionership and remained so until 1905 when it was combined with part of Bengal to form the new Lieutenant-Governor's province of Eastern Bengal and Assam (see below). In 1912 it was once more separated from Bengal and reconstituted as a Chief Commissionership. Between 1921 and 1947 it was given the status of a Governor's province.

For earlier records see under Bengal. For Assam Proceedings, 1905–12 see under Eastern Bengal and Assam.

Bihar and Orissa Proceedings, 1912-31

Approximately 589 volumes or part-volumes

Bihar and Orissa were both separated from Bengal in 1912 and formed into a Lieutenant-Governor's province and later (in 1920) into a Governorship. In 1936 Bihar and Orissa were divided, each being constituted as Governor's provinces.

For earlier records see under Bengal.

Political (with sub-series), 1912–31 Judicial, 1912–31

Burma Proceedings, 1864–1924

Approximately 894 volumes or part-volumes

In 1826 Arakan and Tenasserim were ceded by the Burmese and placed under the control of the Bengal Government. Arakan remained under Bengal until 1862 but responsibility for Tenasserim was divided between the Governments of India and Bengal between 1834 and 1854. In 1852 Pegu and Martaban were annexed, the former being headed by a Commissioner directly under the Indian Government, whilst the latter area was initially entrusted to the Commissioner of Tenasserim. From 1852 the Tenasserim Commissioner was made entirely subordinate to India; and from 1862 the whole administrative structure was simplified by amalgamating the three divisions of Pegu, Arakan and Tenasserim under a Chief Commissioner for British Burma – which thus formed a new province of British India. In 1886 Upper Burma was added to the charge of the Chief Commissioner, the province itself then being simply designated as Burma. Burma became a Lieutenant-Governor's province in 1897, a Governor's province in 1923, and was finally separated from India in 1937, the Governor being thereafter answerable to the Secretary of State for Burma in London.

Official Publications, 1760–1957 (IOR: V)

Approximately 70,000 volumes

The official publications section contains the volumes which formed the reference collection maintained by the Record Department of the India Office. They provide near-comprehensive coverage of British Indian central and local government publications up to 1947 and also include British statutes, parliamentary journals, debates and papers and other British official publications relating to Indian affairs. The publications of the Indian states, with the exception of administration reports, are not generally to be found in the collection.

Other official publications, including confidential prints, are in the Proceedings (P) and in the Departmental Records (L), especially the Military Department Library ((L/MIL/17), the Political and Secret Department Library (L/P&S/20) and the Parliamentary Branch Collections (L/PARL/2).

V/10 Administration Reports, 1855–1957

2704 volumes

The annual administration reports of the territories of British India provide a summary record of the main events and developments in each department of government. 'Red Letter' chapters of standing information on the history, geography and administrative framework are included decennially from 1872/73 to 1921/22. There is also an incomplete set of administration reports for many of the princely states. The following references to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan are taken from:

About 12, 300 volumes

Most of these are non-serial items published for sale by the central and provincial governments in India. There are also a number which were printed for official use only as well as British Government publications and books published commercially under the auspices of the India Office or the Government of India. The types of material include gazetteers, press lists of records, land revenue settlement reports, departmental codes and manuals, reports and authoritative works of scholarship. They are arranged in a classified subject order within ten broad classes; general; law and law enforcement; civil and military administration; finance and revenue; natural and physical sciences; agriculture; products and trade; public works and communications; social and economic conditions; culture.

Map Collections, seventeenth century to date (IOR: W, X, Y)

The Map Collections include manuscript and printed maps, plans, charts, drawings, atlases and geographical memoirs. They relate principally to the sub-continent, neighbouring areas and the sea routes to the east, but also extend to other parts of the world. Brief notes on the main collections are given below under W, X and Y.

The Map Collections were administered before 1947 by the India Office Record Department, in a similar way to the Official Publications (V). Maps acquired since 1947, and maps currently being acquired by the India Office Library and Records, are added to X and Y as appropriate, suitably differentiated in their numbering from the pre-1947 collections.

W Maps from other departments

In two sections:

(a) W/LPS/A to W/LPS/K are the separate collection of maps formed for reference by the Political and Secret Department in the late nineteenth century (Political and Secret Department Memoranda (L/P&S/18) and Library (L/P&S/20).

(b) W followed by a volume or file number (eg W/H/726 or W/LPS/7/112) maps are those from other groups and classes in the records and includes individual maps removed from volumes and files, the Political and Secret Department Map Collection (W/LPS).

Selected maps from W/LPS/I and W/LPS/M21-31 [Simla Convention, 1914] relating to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan are listed below in date order.

Y Modern topographical and small-scale map series

The Y Collection consists of topographical and small-scale map series, chiefly produced by the Survey of India following the recommendations of the 1904–05 Indian Survey Committee. Various of the Survey of India topographical map series were extended, at least in their planned coverage, to include Sikkim, Bhutan and parts of Tibet.

Atlas of India. 4 miles = 1 inch. 1827-1900.

North-East Frontier series. 8 miles = 1 inch (some sheets at 4 miles = 1 inch and 2 miles = 1 inch). 1885-89.

Northern Frontier series. 16 miles = 1 inch. 1882.

India and Adjacent Countries series. 1:1 000 000. 1905–1940.

Carte Internationale du Monde. 1:1 000 000. 1920 onwards. Now known as International Map of the World.

Southern Asia series. 1:2 000 000. 1920-1940.

India and Adjacent Countries series. 8 miles = 1 inch. 1930. Special publication for parts of Tibet.

India and Adjacent Countries series. 4 miles = 1 inch. 1905 onwards. Extended from India to cover Sikkim and parts of Bhutan.

European Manuscripts, 1600–1947 (IOR: MSS EUR)

The European Manuscripts comprise private collections of papers, letters, diaries, memoirs, or other historical material relating to South Asia and neighbouring territories and in particular to the British connection with the Indian sub-continent. Though often containing papers similar to, or complementing, the records of the East India Company, the Board of Control the India and Burma Offices, and the Government of India, the European Manuscripts are distinguished from the official archives of those bodies by their status as private papers, or because they have been parted from their official context.

The European Manuscripts trace their origin as a distinct group of papers to the decision in 1801 of the Directors of the East India Company to establish a Library for the safe custody of books and manuscripts placed in their care by their servants in India and others. The Section was transferred to the India Office Records from the India Office Library in 1975.

The materials to be found in this select list relating to Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim include copies of official or demi-official correspondence and papers, reports, memoranda, diaries, memoirs, notes, drafts of scholarly or literary works, private letters, newspaper cuttings, scrapbooks, photographs and illustrations. For the most part, the manuscripts are in a European language, normally English, but oriental languages occur, for example among the papers of Sir Charles Bell (1870–1945), whose collection includes material in Tibetan, Lepcha, Sanscrit and Bengali. Also to be found are papers in typescript as well as printed material, both published and unpublished – the unpublished printed correspondence of Viceroys and Secretaries of State being a notable example of the latter.

For further details of the European Manuscripts collections, see Select List of Private Collections in the European Manuscripts.

Prints and Drawings (IOL)

The Prints and Drawings collection consists of various types of material. For the purpose of this guide, the material relating to Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim has been listed, with catalogue numbers and short descriptions in an approximately chronological order, by media, under three country headings. The types of material listed are (i) Western drawings, (ii) Prints, (iii) Photographs, (iv) Oriental drawings.

(i) Western drawings are mainly of India by European artists dating from the mid-eighteenth century onwards. Those relating to Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim reflect the interests of various travellers, British missions, botanical expeditions and Trigonometrical Surveys in the Himalaya. Seperate drawings are mounted individually and arranged according to numbers and size [eg WD 3267]. Bound volumes or albums are given separate numbers which in turn are subdivided by folio numbers [eg WD 152/ff 1-26].

(ii) Prints are mainly British but the collection also includes prints published in France, Germany and Holland. Those relating to Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim, in general, deal with landscape, architecture and portraits of Tibetan, Bhutia and Lepcha men and women. The numbering of prints and engravings is pre-fixed with the letter P [eg P. 1315].

(iii) The Photograph collection, in the main, records landscapes, architecture, engineering projects, social scenes and portraits. It dates from the 1850s onwards and, in the case of the Himalayan kingdoms, includes the work of Johnston and Hoffman, John Claude White, Sir Charles Bell, Frank Ludlow and also photographs compiled by Lewin Bentham Bowring. Serial numbers have been given to each album or collection of photographs and sub-numbers to each item [eg Photo 355/1].

(iv) The oriental drawings in the collection relating to Tibet, Bhutan and Sikkim are, for the most part by Tibetan, Nepali and Indian artists. Each drawing, whether separate or bound into an album, has a separate number [eg Add Or 3047–3058].

Tibetan Language Material (IOL)

The IOLR's collection of Tibetan block-books and manuscripts is comparable in depth and quality only with that of its sister department of the British Library, Oriental Collections. The foundation of IOLR's collection goes back to the donation in 1852 of a Narthang Kanjur (Tib O-V, 105 vols) and Tanjur (Tib W-Y, 223 vols) by Brian Hodgson, British Political Resident in Nepal, and the mysterious acquisition around 1846 of 14 manuscript volumes comprising the Ser-phyin (Prajňa-păramită) section of a magnificent St Petersburg Tripitaka, in circumstances unrecorded in the Library's Day Books. Both great collections, however, like those of Oxford and Cambridge universities, owe their rapid growth at the beginning of this century to the archaeological activities and the enterprise of L A Waddell, Medical Officer to Younghusband's political mission to Lhasa (1903–04), and Sir Marc Aurel Stein. The library owes to these two men such treasures as Waddell's 29volume minri-ma'i-rgyud-'bum (tantras of the Nying-ma-pa or oldest sect of Tibetan Buddhism); the pre-11th century religious and literary texts collected by Stein from the immured monastic cave library at Tun-huang; and over 3,000 documents on paper and wood from various sites in Tibet and Central Asia

Individual collections, with numbers used for requisitioning items, are as follows:

A-H. Narthang Kanjur (Waddell Collection). Boxed 99 vols (5 missing) I. A portion of the Lhasa Collection (brought back by Lt-Col Waddell from the Younghusband Mission, and dispersed in British Libraries in 1905) containing approximately 340 xylograph and Ms works.

J. The literary MSS, mostly Buddhist, of the Stein Tibetan Collection (Second Expedition, ie Tun-huang).

K-N. Approximately 2, 300 documents, quasi-official or personal, brought back by Stein.

- K. Second Expedition; documents on wood.
- L. Second Expedition; documents on paper.
- M. Third Expedition; documents on paper.
- N. Third Expedition; documents on wood.

O-V. Narthang Kanjur (Hodgson Collection). Bound 105 vols.

- O. Dul-ba.
- P. Ser-phyin.
- Q. Dkon-brtsegs.
- R. Phal-chen.
- S. Mdo.
- T. Rgyud.
- U. Rgyud.
- V. Dkar-chag.
- W-Y. Narthang Tanjur (Hodgson Collection). Boxed 223 vols.
- W. Bstod.

- X. Rgyud.
- Y. Mdo.

Z. St Petersburg Academy donation (c 1846) containing 14 vols of the 'Red [so-called because the print is red] Pekin' Kanjur, Śer-phyin section. AA. SC Das Collection.

BB. The Denison Ross purchase (acquired 1907). 33 MSS, 45 blockprints.

CC. Miscellaneous MSS and block-prints acquired by donation or purchase from the collections of Ettinghausen, Teichman, Kegan Paul, FW Thomas, Cox, Harland, and other sources.

DD. Rñin-ma'i-rgyud 'bum. 29 vols.

While scholarship is at a preliminary stage in assessing the linguistic and cultural significance of these several collections, the following catalogues represent progress made so far in their description:

Poussin, Louis de Vallee, Catalogue of the Tibetan MSS from Tun-huang in the India Office Library. London, 1962. Ross, ED, A new collection of Tibetan books. Calcutta, 1907. Thomas, FW, Inventory of the Lhasa Collection of Tibetan works amassed by Lt Col L A Waddell, 1903–04 and deposited in the India Office Library. [nd] (MSS Eur. D 496). Denwood, P, Catalogue of Tibetan MSS and block-prints in the India Office Library outside the Stein Collection [This list supersedes the previous item], London, 1975. Waddell, L A, 'Tibetan manuscripts and books, etc, collected during the Younghusband Mission to Lhasa' (Asiatic Quarterly vol 34 (1912) 80–113). Smith, E Gene. Tibetan catalogue [of microfilm copies made from Tibetan material in libraries in Europe and Great Britain including IOLR], Seattle, 1969.

The Library holds some 480 Tibetan printed books. These include the Tokyo Tripitaka (Otani) in 168 vols; the complete works of the great masters of the Sa-Skya (-pa) sect (Tokyo 1968), in 15 vols; and several other multi-volume works. All relevant issues in the Satapitaka Series of the International Academy of Indian Culture (New Delhi) have been acquired.

In building up the Library's collection of Tibetan printed books emphasis has been placed on areas strongly represented in the collection of manuscripts and blockprints: thus Nying-ma-pa texts, for instance, have been acquired rather than Bon-po. In recent years the acquisition of colloquial texts and teaching aids has been left to the Library of the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London.

Appendix: Brief notes on other archival sources in Britain, India, Sikkim, Bhutan and China

I. THE BRITISH LIBRARY: DEPARTMENT OF MANUSCRIPTS

Limited material relating to the early period of Anglo-Tibetan relations is to be found in the Additional Mss. The following have been consulted.

2. THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE

Copies of the greater part of the correspondence between the Government of India and the India Office relating to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan and those concerned with the conduct of British relations with China, were sent by the India Office to the Foreign Office. This correspondence comprises Foreign Office minutes and despatches and Consular reports from Chungking and Nanking in China. Also included is correspondence from St Petersburg specifically relating to Tibet and Sikkim; from the Political Officer in Sikkim, the Trade Agent at Gyantse and Chumbi and the Nepalese Government. The material is to be found particularly in the Foreign Office Confidential Prints published on a yearly basis. They have proved to be an invaluable source of information for all aspects of this study. The following series have been consulted:

FO 17 China. This series, listed as Various contains correspondence from the India Office in the form of drafts, despatches, draft telegrams, telegrams.

FO 17/1108, FO 17/1109, FO 17/1745–1756 deal solely with Tibet and Sikkim.

FO 228. The series contains correspondence between the Peking Legation, its Consulates and the Government of India.

FO 65 Russia. The series contains correspondence between the Russian Foreign Ministry in St Petersburg and the Foreign Office in London. For the purpose of this study, correspondence relevant to Tibet and China has been consulted.

3. NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA, NEW DELHI

Range of materials relating to Tibet, Sikkim and Bhutan closely parallel the official records in the India Office. This is particularly true with reference to the Bengal and India Proceedings for the early years of the East India Company's rule in Bengal, and later for British administration in India.

4. THE DALAI LAMA'S LIBRARY OF TIBETAN WORKS AND ARCHIVES, DHARAMSALA

Contains a large collection of rare Tibetan texts and manuscripts, the emphasis being on works of a religious nature. There is also a section on archives relating to monasterial administration in the Tibetan provinces, edicts from the Dalai Lamas, documents relating to tax and revenue systems.

5. THE NAMYGAL INSTITUTE OF TIBETOLOGY, GANGTOK, SIKKIM

No information regarding the extent of its archival holdings.

6. ROYAL BHUTAN LIBRARY, THIMPHU, BHUTAN

Large collection of Bhutanese records and religious manuscripts. Also correspondence with the British Government, the Deb Raja, the Tongsa Penlop, the Paro Penlop during the Bhutan War. Contains correspondence of the Deb Raja and the Tongsa Penlop with Colonel Younghusband during the Tibet Mission to Lhasa in 1904.

7. STATE ARCHIVES OF CHINA

The archives of the Ming and Qing period relating to foreign affairs are divided between the Palace Museum in Taiwan, the Institute of Modern History in the Academia Sinica in Taiwan, and the Ming-Qing archives, sometimes known as the Number One Archives in Beijing. The last institution contains the documents of the Zong li Yamen [referred to in this study as the Tsungli Yamen] or the Century Foreign Affairs Office. The collection numbers some 100,000 items and includes material dealing with about fifty foreign countries. Some foreign language materials, among them Tibetan, Mongol, Uighur and Manchu, are to be found among the Zong li Yamen Collections; foreign language documentation also exists in other parts of the Ming-Qing archives. Documents relating to the Republican period are housed in Nanjing and are known as the Number Two Archives.
