PREFACE

National Archives of India has a programme for compilation of suitable reference media of cartographic records. This Department has brought out several publications based on these materials namely "Catalogue of Historical Maps", "MRIO Miscellaneous Maps", "Forest Maps", "Printed and Published Maps", "Memoirs of the Survey of India", "Catalogue of Revenue Maps", Volume-I, Volume-II (in four parts) and Volume-III so far.

The present "Catalogue of Revenue Maps" Volume-IV Part-I, contains maps of the areas and districts of former North-West Provinces and United Provinces (present Uttar Pradesh) which cover a period from 1822 to 1893. INTRODUCTION.

Land Survey and mapping in modern India began at the initiative of Robert Clive in 1763. The appointment of Major Rennell as the Surveyor General and detailed topographical survey started by Colonel Colin Mackenzie had given a new direction. The work of mapping India on scientific lines through the Great Trigonometrical Survey began when Major William Lambton started measurement of the Madras base line on 10 April, 1802.

In 1818 office of the Surveyor General was transferred from Military Department to Public Department to facilitate supervision and conduct of revenue Survey. This work gained momentum under Regulation VII of 1822. It, however, assumed much importance during the Surveyor Generalship of Sir Andrew Waugh (1843-61), and Colonel Thuillier who was appointed as Superintendent for Revenue Survey work in 1847. But, it received much impetus when he himself became the Surveyor General in 1861. During his stewardship detailed revenue survey work was pursued in Assam, Bengal, North West Provinces, Central Provinces, Bombay, Sind and Burma. In January, 1878, the three branches of Survey Department—Great Trigonometrical, Topographical and Revenue, which had been functioning separately, were amalgamated into a single body and it was designated as Survey of India.

In North West Provinces the Revenue Survey was conducted in most of its districts between 1822 to 1842. Subsequently the revised settlements in these districts were, however, taken up later on from 1876 onwards by the Professional Surveyors on the cadastral system. In the ensuing year certain improvements in the procedure were devised, one being a change in the scale of the general maps reduced from the cadastral surveys, from four inches to two inches to the mile and an alteration in the style in which they were drawn. Another improvement effected was that no field books of field measurements were prepared, the measurement being plotted instead in the original plans at once in the field, which the settlement officer, instead of being supplied, as formerly with skeleton khusras of field registers, was supplied with copies of the field area calculation books. From these two simplifications, it was calculated that not only more additional areas were surveyed during that season, the cost of the work was also reduced by 30 rupees per square mile. In 1882-83, during the operations in Benaras District another important change was introduced and the field surveyors, who hitherto had prepared maps only, had now to write the khusras as well as the names and records of rights of the proprietors and tenants. In this system, popularly known as Benaras System, the settlement staff was assigned to take the field along with the survey staff and for the two departments to work in co-operation so that all the papers could be prepared in one season. This joint inter-working of the settlement and survey staff proved to be very advantageous to the Department.

Revenue Survey work subsequently was transferred to the respective Provincial Governments in 1905. Henceforth, Survey of India concentrated on topographical Survey.

The survey of India has transferred to this Department about 25,000 maps of Revenue Series, under the head 'Original Cantonment Plans (Revenue), and they pertain to former presidencies of Bombay, Bengal, the Provinces of Punjab, United Provinces and Central Provinces of the then British India. These maps show boundaries and plans of villages talukas, towns, cities and cantonments covering the period from 1822-1927.

.....IM/-....

The present volume is the fourth in the series. It contains 8695 revenue maps of Agra, Aligarh, Azamgarh, Bahraich, Ballia, Banda, Bara Banki, Bareilly, Basti, Bijnor, Budaun, Bulandshahr, Dehradun, Etah, Hamirpur, Hardoi, Jaunpur, Jalaun, Jhansi, Kanpur, Kheri, Lalitpur, Lucknow, Mathura, Meerut, Mirzapur, Moradabad, Muzaffarnagar, Pilibhit, Pratapgarh, Rae Bareilly, Rampur, Saharanpur, Shahjahanpur, Sitapur, Sultanpur, Unnao and Varanasi districts of united provinces pertaining to the period 1822-1893.

All the maps have been catalogued district wise alphabetically and have been grouped under the Presidency/Province to which it belonged. Entries of the maps have been made upto district level only. Each entry carries the current spellings, though in the text old regional names/spellings used in the maps have been retained. An entry in the catalogue constitutes the exact title of the map, the scale, the name of the Surveyor and the year of the Survey, etc. Reference number has been assigned to each map to facilitate its consultation for research work.
