VOL. XXIV.

Nos. I. to VII.—1855.

"It will flourish, if naturalists, chemists, antiquaries, philologists, and men of science, in different parts of Asia, will commit their observations to writing, and send them to the Asiatic Society at Calcutta. It will languish if such communications shall be long intermitted; and it will die away, if they shall entirely cease."—SIR WM. JONES.

Catalogue of Nipalese Birds, collected between 1824 and 1844.—By B. H. HODGSON, Esq.

To the Secretary of the Bengal Asiatic Society.

SIR,—When I went to England in 1844 I presented my immense Zoological Collections (10,000 specimens, osteological and ordinary) to the National Museum. I was immediately asked, how many of the species had been named and described, one or both, in print? I answered that all the new Mammals had been so, by myself, in the Bengal Asiatic Journal, or in the India Review, and that a vast number of the new genera and species of Birds had been described in a paper sent from Nepal just before I left it. But that paper, it was replied to me, had not appeared, and I was requested to recast it, as well as I could, from rough notes, not having retained a copy of the MS. I did so, and the paper was printed. But it did not include the whole of my ornithological stores, and it seemed expedient to put at once in print, my own complete Catalogue of Birds. Accordingly I placed that catalogue in the hands of Mr Gray for publication, and it soon after appeared in London,* substantially my own, but with its groups disposed according to the system followed in the National Museum Catalogue. The alterations I think were not always for the better, my own distribution having been founded on a careful examination of the entire organs of species in a fresh state—a vast advantage, though one, no doubt, qualified by my non-access to Library and Museum. In due time another complete Catalogue of all my collections appeared under the auspices of the Trustees of the National Museum, and therein the Curators of Zoology in that institution made such rectifications of my printed and MS. catalogues as seemed proper to them. No doubt, there was upon the whole much improvement upon my unaided work performed in the jungles. But, for the reason I have already assigned, the new determinations of species and allocations of types according to their affinities, were not always sound, and students of Himalayan Zoology have, accordingly, found it expedient to consult the priorly made Catalogue of Birds which, notwithstanding the changes made in it also by the same hands, yet more clearly than the latter and official one, reflected my own conceptions, particularly as to novelty of species.

* In Gray's Zoological Miscellany for June, 1844.

Accordingly I have been frequently asked for copies of this prior Catalogue which is frequently cited by writers in Europe, but I have no more copies left and cannot comply with these requests. It seems to me that the republication of the Catalogue in our Journal might be of service to local explorers, whose labours it is the great aim of our Journal to assist and facilitate; and that this Catalogue, giving as it does, in one view, a complete enumeration of Nipalese species, must always be convenient for consultation, notwithstanding its errors. I therefore forward it for publication if the Society see fit; and I have marginally noted the chief points in which, I think, Mr. Gray has unwisely deviated from my own allocation of new types.

I am, your's truly,

B. H. HODGSON.

Notes on Northern Cachar.—By Lieut. R. STEWART, 22nd Regt., B. N. I.

North Cachar, including that portion of the country called Toolaram Sonapaty's, is bounded on the north by the rivers Jumoonah and Hurriahján, which separate it from the Assam district of Nowgong. On the east the river Dhunseeree, rising among the Burrail mountains and flowing northward, is our frontier with the independent tribes of Angami and Kutcha Nagas. A huge range of mountains called the Burrail, running directly east and west forms the line of demarkation on the south, with Cachar Proper. And on the west, the Cossilee, and one of its small tributaries called the Umpúng, rising in the Burrail range, and flowing northward, divide it from the Cossiah and Jynteah hill country.

The form enclosed by these boundaries is that of a rude square, of about 3000 square miles in area: all lying within the water-shed of the Birhainpooter, and on its left bank, though removed from the stream toward the uplands. This tract is for the
